Learning from Hach Winik: Tales of Naturalized Knowledge and Scientific Research

Tomasz Falkowski is a PhD candidate at the SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry where he earned his Masters degree in Environmental Resources Engineering. His masters research quantitatively evaluated the sustainability of traditional ecological knowledge based labor and agroforestry system of the Lacandon Maya of Chiapas Mexico. His doctoral research aims to assess the potential role of Lacandon Maya agroforestry in ecosystem restoration and management for ecosystem services.
