Recycling is Mightier than the Sword

Theresa Evans, recycling specialist for the Onondaga County Resource Recovery Agency, will explain that the Chinese government recently announced a “National Sword” campaign to cut down on recycling contamination. China is a major player with significant influence in global recycling markets and their “sword” has caused many U.S. municipalities to rethink their recycling programs. Whether this changes what is accepted in curbside recycling, raises costs felt by taxpayers, or impacts paper mills and other infrastructure in this country, a lot is happening with recycling right now. Learn about this dynamic and changing industry, current and future recycling trends, and actions you can take at home to help ensure that recycling remains strong in New York State. Bring your toughest trash questions and try to stump the expert!
