

Abbie Webb is a sustainability professional with nearly 15 years' experience in the solid waste resource management industry. She has worked in a variety of roles for Casella Waste Systems, a company providing integrated solid waste services in six states: New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine. Since 2016, Abbie has served as Casella's sustainability director, cultivating and managing collaborative partnerships, and creating systems and infrastructure to capture value from society's discards.

Abbie serves on the board of the Northern New England chapter of the Solid Waste Association of North America. She previously served as an officer on the board of directors of the Green Resource Hub of the Finger Lakes, which supported the development of various programs including energy efficiency education, a watt meter lending program, and the establishment of a green business network called the Sustainable Enterprise and Entrepreneur Network (the SEEN).

Abbie earned her Bachelor's degree in Environmental Geography from Colgate University, and her Master's in Environmental Planning from Cornell University.
