Preservation: How History Sustains Us

Andrew Roblee '11 is a Cultural Resources Specialist at Environmental Design and Research. Historic preservation is the merging of education, community planning, and real estate, and is just one of the many "children of history" that has the power and ability to make a difference in the world. Far from the mission of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association, historic preservation in 2017 aims not only to preserve memory and place, but also to encourage environmental sustainability, support urban revitalization, protect rural spaces, and to repurpose vacant properties of every shape, size, and function.

Monday, February 12, 2018 from 12:20 – 1:20PM
deWitt Lecture Hall, Zabriskie Hall Room 106

All Sustainability Perspectives series events are free and open to the public. The series explores the concept of 'sustainability' from a variety of viewpoints.

Wells is committed to providing access to all events; anyone needing assistance should contact Marian Brown, Center for Sustainability and the Environment, at 315-364-3304 or by email at mbrown@wells.edu, as soon as possible.
