Human Composting: An ecological death care option

Anna Swenson is the customer and communications manager at Recompose, an ecological death care company based in Seattle, Washington. Recompose is the first full service funeral home to offer the process of natural organic reduction, which gently transforms humans into soil after death. In this presentation, Ms. Swenson will cover the science behind the NOR process, this history of bringing Recompose to life, and the importance of greener death care options.
