Hope for the Climate (even with a partisan Congress)

Nancy Jacobson has been teaching at Ithaca College for over 20 years, including a first-year seminar on global warming. Three years ago, she joined the Citizen's Climate Lobby, a national, grass roots organization in which citizens have been working with their members of Congress to embrace a national, bipartisan bill to reduce future climate change. The group has seen amazing progress in just the last two years. Yes, there is hope!
