Moving an Upstate New York County Toward “Net-Zero”

Terry Carroll, Chief Sustainability Officer for Tompkins County, is responsible for leading and overseeing the overall execution and efficacy of Tompkins County’s Energy Strategy and the pursuit of a financially sound path to net-zero emissions in County operations. He will talk about the policies and practices the county is employing to reduce the energy intensity of its daily operations and how he works with County departments and community members to gain their support to achieve this ambitious vision.
